

In this monologue, Joseph of Arimathea — who has kept his sympathies towards Jesus secret out of fear for his political position — finally decides to go public and ask for permission to give Jesus a proper burial.